MAJOR SMITH QUESTIONED
ABOUT NOROTON HOME.
Told of Bug Day and Ancient Beans—Says Corned Beef is Tender.
Burnt sausage, ancient beans, a marker that went bad in 1911, water bugs and discourtesy on the part of officials entered conspicuously into the testimony at the hearing before Governor Wolcott on Tuesday on conditions at the Old Soldiers' home at Noroton. Morning and afternoon sessions were held, the morning being devoted to the complaints of the old soldiers and the afternoon session to the defense offered by the officials.
Major George S. Smith, inspector of the home and formerly a resident of Norwich, was under the heaviest fire at the afternoon session. In fact the criticism in general tended to strike him more than anyone else. In reply to many queries asked by the governor Major Smith explained some and denied others.
"You are responsible for seeing that the beds, floors and wards are kept clean," the governor asked.
"Well," said the major, "I've never had that duty defined. The rules specify that a formal inspection of clothing and the men's quarters must be made once a week. That takes place on Monday morning. The inspector is usually accompanied by a doctor, and all defects are reported."
"Where anyone under your whose duty it is to see that the beds are kept clean?"
"Why, once a month we have bug day," said the major, "and on that day, the day we kill the bugs. A man sprays under the beds—and in this connection I would say that the spraying fluid gets on the bed mattresses, and that is why several of them appear to be dirty, whereas they are really not dirty."
"Do you supervise the table?" asked the governor.
"In a general way, yes."
"You have heard what these men said about the hash swimming in grease. What do you wish to say about that?"
"I can say confidently that no cotton-topped oil, or any other foreign matter has ever been used in the hash."
"Can you state, major," Judge Beers asked, "whether or not every hotel always has perfect cooking?"
The major declared he had eaten at hotels all over the land, from Maine to Texas, and had frequently had so-called New England boiled dinners which included corned beef that was actually so tough he couldn't eat it.
"Whereas," he concluded, "everybody will admit that our corned beef is tender."
He denied that he interfered unduly with the cooks, but admitted two or three had been discharged for cause. Mr. Gilbert Smith of the hospital said that as far as he knew the food was all right. He was asked to taste the sausage so bitterly complained of Tuesday morning, he said, and considered it edible.
Ward Master Henry Smith, an inmate of the home for two years, testified for the officials of the home. The men were allowed to bathe on only three days a week, he admitted, but he added that on special occasions they could take baths at odd times.
Bushmen's food consists largely of locusts.

THE GIVING OF THE YEAR OF WAR
Rev. E. S. Worcester Points Out the Christian Basis for Giving Thanks This Year—His Sermon Given Vote of Commendation by Congregation at Union Service at Central Baptist Church.

Before a congregation of about 200 at the Central Baptist church on Thursday afternoon the Rev. E. S. Worcester of Broadway Congregational church delivered the sermon, which was declared by vote of the congregation and the ministers to be the finest Thanksgiving sermon that they had heard and ought to be published in full for the benefit of the general public.
The service opened with the invocation by Rev. Joseph F. Cobb of the Church of the Good Shepherd, who also led the singing of the hymn, "The Service of the Lord," which was announced by Rev. Dr. J. B. Slocum, pastor of the church, and the scripture lesson was read by Rev. H. J. Slocum, pastor of the church.
The offering, which was for the United Workers, amounted to $5.88. A selection was rendered by the choir while it was taken.
In his Thanksgiving sermon, Rev. Mr. Worcester spoke in part as follows:
The war in Europe involves the world. It is not merely a background to our thought; it must affect the life of every man, woman and child. We have thus far been spared the severest stress of conflict is ground, indeed, for gratitude, but too self-centered in general tendency to strike ground. What signs are there, even under a darkened sky, of the reign of righteousness and the eternal validity of God's good purposes?
What Has Been Disclosed.
There have been disclosed among us, first of all, the springs of a great compassion. Commercialism and self-seeking are not the whole of American life. In general tendency to strike ground, the question "Who is my neighbor?" has been answered once more and it was in the parable of the good Samaritan.
There has been revealed in the American character an unsuspected reserve of nobility and self-restraint. The old bragadoocio is gone; there is something less of touchiness and swagger. The nation has had to rule its spirit; let us hope that the discovery of possibility of so doing has not been lost upon us.
Gains We Have Made.
The year has brought us a great gain in thoughtful living. We have larger themes to reflect on, and have applied ourselves to them more earnestly than at any time since the Civil war. We have been confronted with practical as well as an intellectual necessity of grasping such terms as patriotism, democracy, brotherhood.

HOPKINS & ALLEN
GUARDS GET MAN.
Found New Londoner Climbing Over Fence at Rear of Gordon Building.
John Perrin of New London, Portage, was caught a little after midnight Wednesday by two of the Hopkins & Allen special guards as he was climbing over a fence at the rear of the Gordon building at the corner of Water and Chestnut streets. Superintendent Michael Pouch and Special Watchman Myra Sullivan were the ones that made the capture.
Pouchman Sullivan caught the man just as he was climbing the fence. The New London man could give no satisfactory account of why he was there, but said something about thinking he was in New London and was looking for his pay at the place he worked.
The man who was caught was locked up over night at police headquarters and was presented in the police court on Thursday morning on the charge of intoxication and breach of the peace. He was given fifteen days in jail and costs.

BOY'S CLOTHING FOUND
ON LAUNCH
Dragging River for Body of 7-Year-Old Martin Robak.
After a long search Thursday night for seven-year-old Martin Robak, who was reported missing by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Robak of 44 Thames street, the police came upon the little fellow's coat, sweater and a cloth which he had around his neck on a launch in the rear of the North Grain Co. barn on the dock.
They were guided to the spot by six-year-old William Thompson, son of Walter Thompson of 44 Summit street, who said that the Robak boy had fallen overboard. It seems probable that he was drowned and as soon as the place was located the police covered the area. The police also covered the West Side in their search and finally ran onto the trail.
The Thompson boy was located after a scouring search of the West Side to find someone who had seen the missing boy. The Thompson boy was found asleep in bed at his parents' home and when questioned he said the Robak boy had fallen into the river and that he had seen the body. The boy allowed him to go with the police and he led them to the spot where the clothes were found.
The police had started looking for the boy about 11 o'clock and had a hard job locating anyone who had seen him, but Sergeant Matthews and Sergeant Kane and two other officers covered the West Side in their search and finally ran onto the trail.
